About AFAF

The African Film & Arts Foundation(AFAF) is a non-profit 501(C)(3) media arts organization based in Atlanta, Georgia, that aims to be a conduit for changing the imagery and narrative of Africans and people of African descent through the lens of arts and culture.

Launched in 2019, AFAF partly realizes its mission through two of its signature events: Cinema for the Culture (CFC), a monthly film screening, and in conversation sessions with filmmakers and the African Film Festival Atlanta. The inauguration of 'Cinema for the Culture' was funded by Georgia Humanities and Sudan's official submission to the 2021 Academy Awards - "You Will Die at Twenty," directed by Amjad Abu Alala, was the film screened.
